

The Madison Environmental Commission Invites You to a FREE Screening

Join your neighbors in viewing this inspiring one-hour documentary about the powerful effects of community activism.

Fifty years ago, local residents worked together to defeat the Port Authority's plans to build a jet port that would have destroyed the Great Swamp. Their activism offers inspiring lessons that we can put into action today to face current environmental threats.

March 10, 2:00pm
@ Madison Public Library's Chase Room

Karl Fenske, whose family was instrumental in saving the Swamp, will introduce the film. Scott Morris, the film's Director and Co-Producer will be on hand to discuss the film.

Light refreshments will be served
Discussion will follow the screening
